The Parrish Art Museum has postponed this weekend's Open House events for VIP and Museum Members. The events were designed to provide a first look at the new museum and its inaugural art exhibitions and installations. Hurricane Sandy's continuing impact was cited as the reason for the postponement, according to the Parrish's website.

Open House events for the public have not been impacted. The museum officially opens on Saturday, Nov 10, 2012. The museum will be open-free of charge-from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. from Saturday (Nov 10) through Monday (Nov 12). Special live performances and events take place from Friday, Nov 9, through Sunday, Nov 11.

Both VIP Open Houses have been rescheduled for next week.

The VIP Open House and Reception has been rescheduled to Friday, Nov 9, from 6 to 9 p.m. It was originally set for tomorrow. The VIP Open House and Reception is for $1,000 plus museum members and invited donors. RSVPs for the new time are requested by emailing rsvp@parrishart.org. The champagne reception provides the first opportunity to view the new Parrish Art Museum.

The Exclusive Open House for Members has been rescheduled to Saturday, Nov 10, from 9 to 11 a.m. It was originally set for Sunday. The Exclusive Open House is for museum members and invited donors. The Open House allows attendees to view the new museum and exhibitions, tour the facilities and meet staff.

Those wishing to become museum members and attend the VIP events can email membership@parrish.org or call Melissa Gatz in the Membership Department at 631-283-2118, ext. 149.
