

ART SEEN: Guild Hall's Lifetime Achievement Awards Dinner

March 23, 2015

by Hamptons Art Hub Staff

The stars, supporters, and the Hamptons arts community came out to celebrate Guild Hall on March 9, 2015 during Guild Hall's Academy of the Arts Lifetime Achievement Awards Dinner. While attendees dazzled, they also helped raise around $400,000 to benefit Guild Hall.

This year's gala honored Matthew Broderick in the Performing Arts; Jules Feiffer for Literary Arts and Media; and Ralph Gibson for Visual Arts. The Special Award for Leadership and Philanthropic Endeavors was bestowed to Linda and Harry Macklowe. Presenting the awards were Martin Short, Laurie Anderson, Robert Caro and Michael Lynne. The evening was hosted by artist Eric Fischl.

Held at Sotheby's, Guild Hall's Academy of the Arts Lifetime Achievement Awards Dinner attracted over 200 guests. Attendees from the artworld included John Alexander, Mary Boone, April Gornik, Bryan Hunt, Mary J. Marcasiano, Malcom Morley, Dan Rizzi, Clifford Ross, and Ned Smyth and others.

Guild Hall wasted no time in giving back to the community. Executive Director Ruth Appelhof announced at the awards dinner that Guild Hall will offer free admission through April 2016, thanks to generous donations from Suffolk County National Bank and Barbara and Donald Zucker. Guild Hall's mission is to celebrate the artistic spirit on the East End by educating, inspiring, and enriching diverse audiences with excellent and engaging year-round programming.
