Gallery Talk with Hal Buckner at Guild Hall

On Saturday, July 18 at 1 p.m. join Hal Buckner in Guild Hall's Wasserstein Family Gallery for a talk. Buckner's sculpture and wall works are the subject of a solo show installed in the gallery and in the adjacent sculpture garden.

Hal Buckner's work emanates from the fluid line, taking a figurative image and reducing it to its most essential element. This lyrical line, cut from a single piece of aluminum, representing the sensuous outline of the female form or depicting group gatherings.

Admission is free.

Guild Hall is located at 158 Main St, East Hampton, NY 11937. For information, visit www.guildhall.org.

Guild Hall Summer Fashion Series On and Off the Runway: Lisa Perry & Cristina Cuomo

On Sunday, July 19 at 11 a.m. host and curator Pamela Fiori, former Editor-in-chief of Town & Country magazine, interviews designer Lisa Perry.

Lisa Perry was a vintage apparel collector well before she evolved into the renowned fashion designer that she is today. As a student at FIT, she became fixated on the styles of the 1960s and 1970s and began accumulating clothing and accessories in earnest. From Rudi Geinrich to Courreges, Perry amassed a treasure trove that is the inspiration for her own vivid designs (her boutique is on Main Street in East Hampton Village).

But it isn't only vintage fashion that has been an influence on Lisa Perry; it is also contemporary art. She and her husband Richard Perry are major collectors of many of the very same artists whose work has graced the galleries of Guild Hall: Roy Lichtenstein, Larry Rivers, Andy Warhol, Chuck Close, Jeff Koons and others. To prove the point, Perry will show some of her most art-inspired designs and explain how they came to be.

Tickets are $15/$13 members. VIP ticket: $75/$50 members with reception to follow. Guild Hall is located at 158 Main St, East Hampton, NY 11937. For information, visit www.guildhall.org.

Readings at the Montauk Library

On Sunday July 19 at 3:30 p.m. at the Montauk Library, Harriet Slaughter, poet & artist, will read from her recent work, Ars Poetica and Mira J. Spektor, poet & composer will read selections from her book of poems, The Road to November as well as her newest work. The program will also include the screening of The Passion of Lizzie Borden, a 15-minute opera, which Mira Spektor based on the poetry of Ruth Whitman.

Former actress and arts administrator, Harriet Slaughter has been active in the performing arts her entire life. After retiring Director of Labor Relations for the Broadway League, she has been pursuing her creative journey through painting and writing poetry. Poet/composer/lyricist, Mira J. Spektor has created numerous works for voice, chamber operas & musicals. Ms. Spektor is a summer resident of East Hampton.

This program is part of a series of several programs at the Montauk Library entitled WOMEN CELEBRATING WOMEN.

The Montauk Library is located at 871 Montauk Highway, Montauk, NY 11954. For information, visit www.montauklibrary.org
