

Outsider Art Fair, Master Drawings New York Opens along with Fairs Featuring Ceramics or Antiques

January 19, 2017

by Pat Rogers

Three art fairs and Masters Drawings New York open this week in New York City with each presenting a distinct point of view. Arriving this week are the Outsider Art Fair, the New York Ceramics and Glass Fair, Master Drawings New York and the Winter Antiques Show, which presents contemporary art for the first time among its exhibitors.

The Outsider Art Fair takes place in Chelsea at the Metropolitan Pavilion. Otherwise, the Upper East Side is the place to be with the New York Ceramics and Glass Fair held at the Bohemian National Hall; the Winter Antiques Show taking up residency at the Park Avenue Armory and Master Drawings New York taking place in an array of Upper East Side galleries.

Each art fair or event presents a distinct focus and unveils something new for its 2017 edition.

Outsider Art Fair

January 19 - 22, 2017

New York Ceramics and Glass Fair

January 19 - 22, 2017

Preview: January 18, from 5 to 8:30 p.m.

The New York Ceramics and Glass Fair presents 29 curated galleries presenting ceramics, porcelain, pottery, glass, cloisonné and enamels from the 17th - 21st centuries. Exhibitors come from England, Europe, Asia and the United States. For the list of exhibitors, click here.

This year's edition features two special exhibitions within the fair. "Private Thoughts: Beadwork Sculpture," by Leslie B. Grigsby, an off-loom, woven-beadwork sculptor who also serves as senior curator of ceramics and glass at Winterthur Museum in Delaware. "Expression and Experimentation in Clay" curated by Thomas Lollar, a professor at Teachers College/Columbia University and Paul Limperopulos, director of The Benefit Arts Project. The exhibition highlights the variety of work by students whose work exemplifies the diverse ceramic techniques from the studio at Teachers College/Columbia University.

In addition, there is a full line up of lectures to illuminate the art and craft of ceramics, glass, lighting and collecting. Click here for details.

Tickets are $20 General Admission for the duration of the fair, $90 for the Preview and General Admission.

The New York Ceramics and Glass Fair is located at Bohemian National Hall, 321 East 73rd Street, New York, NY 10021. www.nyceramicsandglass.com.

Winter Antiques Show

January 20 - 29, 2017

Opening Night Party: January 19, from 5 to 9 p.m.

Expert Eye Evening: January 27, from 5:30 to 8 p.m.

Presenting its 63rd edition, the Winter Antiques Show features 70 exhibitors presenting antiques, design objects, art and photography from antiquity to the present. This year is the first time contemporary art has been invited for exhibition by galleries who have a contemporary art program as part of their typical business, according to the Winter Antiques Show's Executive Director Catherine Sweeney Singe.

Collaborations among exhibitors to present more current art have been encouraged as well. One example is a collaboration between Peter Fetterman, a California dealer in classic Twentieth Century photography, and Jonathan Boos, a New York dealer in Twentieth Century American paintings and sculpture, according to the Winter Antiques Show.

A special exhibition, "Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art Museum: Revolution & Evolution," marks the 60th anniversary of the Colonial Williamsburg museum in Williamsburg, Virginia. Click here for details.

Of special Hamptons interest in an anticipated presentation of Samuel Yellin ironwork commissioned for the Sabin estate in Southampton by Bernard Goldberg Fine Arts of New York City.

Exhibitors at the Winter Antiques Show include Peter Fetterman Gallery, Alexander Gallery, Cove Landing, Elle Shushan and others. Click here for the full exhibitor list.

Tickets are $25 daily, $25 for the Expert Eye Evening (including booth talks, wine tastings and conversations on collecting and design). Admission to the Opening Night Party begins at $300.

The Winter Antiques Show takes place at the Park Avenue Armory, 643 Park Avenue, New York, NY 10065. www.winterantiquesshow.com.
