

Art on Long Island - Seven to See in October 2019

October 2, 2019

by Julia Halsey

New exhibitions of contemporary art open across Long Island in October 2019 across both Nassau and Suffolk Counties. There are plenty of solo shows opening with month including those for Southampton artist Hal Buckner, Long Island abstract painter Karen Kirshner and New Orleans artist Gabrielle Ledet. Group shows tackle environmental impact, welcome new photographers to a cooperative gallery and offer a strange trip through the shows of the Grateful Dead.

Read on to discover our picks for new art shows opening this month in both galleries and museums on Long Island. To discover more art on view on Long Island, including The Hamptons and the North Fork, visit our Exhibition Finder by clicking here.
