"There is a place deep in the folds of memory where every thought, every emotion still lives. They slumber there, together with long lost loves, words unspoken, and forgotten dreams." – Phil Marco

Phil Marco unveils Dream of Flight as part of the group show "All The Places We Go" presented at The White Room Gallery from March 7 to April 4, 2020. Dream of Flight, a composite digital image, is a departure from his main body of work in both composition and art making technique.

After viewing the artwork online, art writer Pat Rogers remarked, "The artwork that you shared is haunting. At a glance, it seems like the work combines classical figuration with references to the Hudson River School and mythology to create a contemporary narration is unusual. It's both powerful and beautiful."

Phil Marco has created many memorable images for clients worldwide. His signature is graphic simplicity. The New York Times defined Marco as a Minimalist whose images are sensual, often surreal, always strong, and deceptively simple.

Phil's work is represented in MoMA, The Museum of the Moving Image and The George Eastman Museum of Photography. To see more of Phil Marco's art, visit www.philmarco.com.
